About the Event (in 150 words): Dr. B.R. Ambedkar, also known as the Father of the Indian Constitution, was a politician, economist, philosopher, anthropologist, polymath, civil rights activist, and social reformer who fought for the Dalit community's rights by speaking out against the Indian caste system. He was born on April 14, 1891. Dr. B.R. Ambedkar, the key architect of India's constitution, was a staunch supporter of women's and labour rights. Because Ambedkar fought for equality throughout his life, his birthday is observed in India as 'Equality Day.' To honour his contribution to India, the 14th of April has been observed as Ambedkar Jayanti or Bhim Jayanti in India, since 2015.

The Constitution of India, a unique text with numerous unique aspects, is the world's longest written constitution of any sovereign nation. The original Constitution had 395 articles divided into 22 divisions and eight schedules. It went into force on January 26, 1950, the day India commemorates as Republic Day each year. Due to 100 revisions, the total number of articles has risen to 448..
